BECKHAM PUTS PEN TO BILLS.

Gov. Beckham signed a number of bills last week that were passed by the General Assembly towards the close of the session, used the axe freely on some and allowed others to become laws without his approval. The other bills that have been signed by the Governor have been published in previous numbers of the news. Only two of them are of local interest and of general importance given.

H. B. No. 110; by R. W. Miller—Authorizing the condemnation of a passway through private property when necessary for the ingress or egress of persons who otherwise would be cut off from a passway to their property.

Lochrey—Requiring livery stable keepers to keep a record of all vehicles used, securing the signature of the patron and requiring him to state how long he has been in business, the value of his stock, the cost of his carriage, and how far he intends to go. Any violations of the law are declared to be a misdemeanor, the penalty being fine or imprisonment or both. The giving of a fictitious name also comes under the ban of this law.

S. B. No. 69, by Henry George—Making it unlawful to sell liquor by wholesale in a local option district, except that manufacturers may sell their own make. The exception is made in order that the manufacturer be compelled to sell at local option districts.

S. B. No. 189, Authorizing counties to issue bonds for the construction of turnpikes and gravel roads. Upon petition of 15 percent of the voters the County Judge is required to call an election to decide whether or not bonds shall be issued for that purpose.

This institution has existed for almost half a century, and is said to be the only coeducational institution of the kind in the South. Under the Day law Berea College cannot exist after July of this year unless it provides a separate school either for the whites or the negroes at a distance of not less than twenty-five miles from the seat of Berea College.

H. B. No. 459, by Charles E. Day—Authorizing fourth-class towns to levy a tax of 25 cents, instead of 50 cents, as provided in the present law, for public school purposes.

SHORT & HAYNES UNUSUAL OFFER

Sell Dr. Howard's Specific at Half-Price, and Guarantee a Cure

"It isn't often that we have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said Short & Hayes to a Breckenridge News man who dropped into their store, "but we are glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis."

"The Dr. Howard company, in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes us to sell their remedies at one cent bottles, half price 25 cents, and although we have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory.

"One great advantage of this specific," he continued, "is its small size and convenient form. There are sixty doses in a vial that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse and one has more medicinal power than a big pill or tablet or a number of mineral water.

WIND AND RAIN CAUSE DAMAGE.

Two severe rain and wind storms swept through the Ohio Valley last week, doing a great amount of damage to farm buildings and fences in many sections and causing some loss of life. The rain in some sections was the heaviest known for years and hundreds of people were rendered homeless by flooded districts. Lightning during the storm on Saturday killed several persons, and heavy hills caused the death of many young pigs and lambs in Kentucky. The storm Friday night was more severe than the one Tuesday in some parts of the country.

In Indiana eight persons were drowned in floods and the property loss was about $10,000,000. Arkansas Michigan and other states suffered in an equal manner.

No one was killed in this country but one former resident lost his life by lightning and another was seriously injured. Wm. Masterson, aged nineteen, whose home was formerly at Lahart, six miles above Steepletop, was killed by a bolt of lightning at Steepletop, Monday evening. He leaves a wife and his parents Mr. and Mrs. John Masterson, of this county. His funeral was held at Blackford Thursday.

John Batt, a motorman for the city railway company of Owensboro, was nearly killed Friday night by an awning and several tons of brick and mortar fell on him on Main street in that city. Two ribs were broken and he received internal injuries. The result of his injuries is doubtful. Mr. Batt is well-known here, where he resided several years ago.

The deceased leaves a husband and three children, and many relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was a devoted Christian woman and had been a faithful member of the church of her choice since early girlhood.

The sympathy of the community is with the stricken relatives in this their sad affliction.

CHAPTER XXX.

PERHAPS she will fail, and that will be the end of it," mumbled Francois on his high seat next to the coachman, repeating the marquis' words as they drove home after the nobleman's precipitous retreat from the theater. Here the carriage drew up sharply before the marquis' house, and the horses hastily alighted, then open the door.

"What? What? Are we here?" muttered the marquis, starting from the corner where he had been reclining.

He arose with some difficulty and finally, with the assistance of a servant, found his feet again in his room, the sick chamber he had grown to detest. Here alone, having dismissed the servant as soon as possible, he moved restlessly to and fro, pondering deeply. Since the moment when he had seen and recognized his daughter, all the nobility which had given his wasted figure a sort of galvanic vitality seemed to vanish.

"That resemblance cannot be coincidental," he thought. "Oh errors of the past, you come home in our old age when the limbs are faltering and life is a burden."

Going to the secretary, he took out a box that had not been opened in years and with trembling fingers turned over many papers. He shivered and, thinking it was cold, stirred the fire. Returning to the secretary, he took from the top shelf a small oil lamp, still, after the lapse of these many years, slightly fragrant, and he breathed that perfume so faintly, so subtle, while recollections smote him like a knife.

It seemed was familiar to him. It seemed to bring life to the dead, and for the moment in his mind's eye he saw her glowing figure—the love of his youth—with flashing, revengeful eyes and noble mien. He covered over the desk, as if shrinking from an avenging spirit which permeated every atom, filled his brain with strange fantasies. He strove to drown remembrances, but some force—it seemed not his own—drove him irresistibly to the ribbon, to scrutinize many old theater programmes and to gaze at the names of famous deplored a woman in the hoodliness of her charms, but whose striking likeness to the young actress he had just seen filled his heart with strange fear. Some powerfully it could not have been his will, which rebuked him, that he should under his roof find what would be miserable; but he was destined to visit the St. Charles hotel? He was obliged to monsieur, the ticket seller, and wished him good day.

Entering the hotel, he sent his card to Barnes, requesting an interview, and the manager overcame the heat of his visit and responded with alacrity. The customary formalities over, the nobleman congratulated Barnes on the performance and led the conversation to the young actress.

"Pardon my curiosity," he said, with apparent carelessness, "but I'm sure I remember an actress of the same name in London some time ago."

"Her mother, undoubtedly," replied the manager promptly.

"She was married, was she not?" "A scoundrel who took her for his wife in one clandestine repudiation the same year he made his fortune."

"Ah, a French-English marriage!" said the marquis blanching. "An old wives' tale, but what was this lover's name?"

"This husband's, my lord."

"Lover or husband, I fancy it is all the same," he said, and snorted the cigar. "She has passed the point where reputation matters."

"Her reputation is my concern, Mr. Marquis."

"You knew her?" asked the nobleman, as though the conversation were of the greatest interest.

"I do not know her memory."

"Good day, monsieur! You are severe on the lover. Was it not the fashion of the day for the actresses to take lovers or for the fops to have an operetta girl or a comedienne?" said your lordship, with a smile, "and I am afraid that you will be disappointed."

"Pardon, sir, I am somewhat lacking in knowledge of these things."

"I am going insane," he said, laughing harshly. "Fool! To let that woman's memory distract me! So much for my fire prophecy!" And he snapped his fingers and dropped the letter in the fire.

"What can her curse really?" he said aloud. "She is gone, turned to ashes like that paper, and there is no life after this one. All then is nothing, emptiness, desolation, despair which has made me nervous. Something to compose me, and then to bed."

In spite of soothing powders, however, he passed a restless night and arose unrefreshed, but ordered his coachman to get him light riding-suits, and, having dressed, he set a white flower upon his coat, while the servant prepared to apply various pigments to the wrinkled face until it took on a mocking semblance to the countenance of a man fifteen years younger. The marquis leered at himself in the pier glass and assumed a jauntiness of demeanor he was far from feeling.

"I do not look tired or worried, Francois?"

"Not at all, my lord," replied the obsequious valet. "I never saw you my lord, appear so young and well."

"I am not young, Francois; there are age and weakness," answered the marquis in a melancholy tone.

"It is but a passing indisposition, my lord," asserted the servant soothingly.

"Perhaps. But, Francois!"—peering around—"I look over my shoulder; do you know what I see?"

The servant, who had observed the countenance of the room, his face alarmed the servant.

"No, my lord. What is it?"

"A figure stands there in black and is touching me. It is the spirit of death, Francois. You cannot see it, but I do."

"My lord, you speak wildly."

"I have seen some strange things, Francois. The dead have arisen. And I have received my warning. Soon I shall join those dark specters which once gaily traversed this bright world."

A little brandy and soda, Francois."

The servant brought it to him. The marquis leaned awfully over his shoulder once more, "your health, my sweet!" he exclaimed, laughing harshly. "But my hat, Francois. I have business to perform, important business!"

He ambled out of the room. On the street he was all precision and regularity, his plump wrists rolled by in his carriage and pausing to chat with another representative of the sex of the blond type. Then he gayly sauntered on until, reaching the theater, he stopped and made a number of inquiries. Who was the manager of the famous theater? Where was he to be found? At the St. Charles hotel? He was obliged to monsieur, the ticket seller, and wished him good day.

Entering the hotel, he sent his card to Barnes, requesting an interview, and the manager overcame the heat of his visit and responded with alacrity.

A little brandy and soda, Francois."

The servant brought it to him. The marquis leaned awfully over his shoulto resist, so together, father and daughter, they entered the cathedral. Side by side they knelt, to keep up the appearance of a widow and her son, yet only mocking words came to the old man's heart as the bitterness of the situation overwhelmed him. She was a daughter in whom a prince might have found pride, but he remained silent, not daring to speak, excepting now and then, voices of remorse and retribution, and was only recalled to himself as his glance once more rested upon the young girl.

He became dimly conscious that people were moving past them, and he suddenly heard a cry, "Monsieur!" and he forgot down the impulse. Something within held him from speaking to her—perhaps his own inherent sense of the consistency of things, his appreciation of the legitimate finale to a miserable order of circumstances. Even the words of deploration did not establish habit.

"Merry, indeed my lord," said Francois, "but you are not in Paris. There was the little peasant sot on the Rhine. What faxen hair she had and eyes like the sky! Yet a word of praise, a little flattery!"

"My lord was irresistible," said the valet, with mild sarcasm.

"I see, Francois. What became of her?"

"She drowned herself in the river."

"That is true. I had forgotten. Well, life is measured by pleasures, not by years, and I was the prince of comedians. Up at 10 o'clock—no sooner on my feet than in voice and visits from the tradespeople and a drive in the park to look at the ladies. It was there I used to meet the English actress. Twas there, with her, I vowed the park was a garden of Eden! What a scene when my barrister tried to settle the case! Fortunately a manager in town had come to my rescue in France. I saw her last night, Francois"—with an insane look—"the flesh and blood, as lifelike as the night before we took the stage for Brighton!" Suddenly he shrieked, and a look of pain replaced the valet's gentle smile.

"What ails you, Francois?" asked the marquis, glancing with a weary eye at his host.

"I have found pride, and that is all man."

"I see, Francois."

JEWELS HELD OVER.

Henry Jewells, colored, was tried before Police Judge Wills Thursday afternoon for shooting Jeff Wells, also colored, with intent to kill, on March 22, and was held over to the grand jury his bond being fixed at $300. Jewells was unable to give bond and was taken to Hardinsburg Friday by Marshal Dehaven and placed in the county jail to await the action of the May term of circuit court.

The trial had been one of the most interesting that has come before Judge Wills and attracted a large crowd of spectators. Fourteen witnesses were examined and the trial consumed nearly three hours. H. C. Murray, attorney for the defense, pleaded not guilty to the charge of shooting with intent to kill and took the stand that Jewells shot in self-defense. The testimony of all the witnesses seemed to bear out this point, as they all stated that Wells had cut his knife and was advancing on Jewells who was retreating. Gus Brown, the county attorney, based his only strong argument on testimony given by Lucy Jewells, mother of the defendant. She said she was between Wells and Jewells when the shot was fired and was trying to keep them apart. Mr. Brown said the court it could not possibly afford protection when a man would shoot another man with his own mother between them and at the distance stated (about seven feet).

Trust Company Buys Plant.

The Patton brickyard was sold last Wednesday at noon by R. N. Hudson, Special Master, by order of the United States Court, to the Columbia Finance and Trust company, of Louisville, the company holding the mortgage on the plant, for $9,500. The only bid received was that of the purchaser, Judge J. H. Baskin, of Louisville, acting as its representative.

Beatty Gets New Trial

It is claimed by the attorneys for Oliver Beatty, who was convicted in the Federal Court of the offense of raising a $1 silver certificate to $100, that he will be given a new trial if any of the documents he has discovered in the case, yesterday made a motion for a new trial, based on this newly discovered evidence. The case is set for argument on the motion for a new trial on March 29. Beatty has never been sentenced.—Thursday's Louisville Herald.

A SAD STORY IS THIS ONE.

Cincinnati, O., March 24.—Five motherless children will today be transported from the branch hospital in Lick Run to Glendale, Ky., to an uncle. With their departure an incident that was tragic will be closed. On February 7, with her infant Lillian, and twelve-year-old son, William, Mrs. Julia Miller was removed from the Children's Hospital from her home at 1414 Walnut street.

After a careful examination it was declared they were suffering from a highly contagious disease and their isolation in the branch hospital annex was ordered. On the following day the remaining members of the family, James, Jennie, Annie and Clarence, the oldest of whom was 10 and the youngest 4 years, were sent to join them at the annex. Then came a counter order, and it was declared that some of the family were only suffering from chicken-pox and they were returned to the main institution. However, there was no declaration that had been issued to the patients that they would be compelled to go back to isolation, and they went.

About two weeks afterward both mother and the infant Lillian, died within 24 hours of each other. Strange to say, the death certificates in both cases gave the cause of death as scarlet fever and the ingenious explanation was afterward given that all were afflicted with the same contagious disease, but that they contracted it separately, which one in the main, natural, which originally waited to manifest itself until after the first disease had made its appearance.

The remaining members of the family have completely recovered and Mayor Fleischmann yesterday issued a pass for them to Glendale, Ky. The mother and child rest in potter's field, while the father of the little ones is a hopeless lunatic in a Kentucky asylum.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.
Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from cold or from an attack of the grippe, and that giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years, I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Passes Away in Texas.

Theophilus Holder, brother of Isaac Holder, of this city, died on March 19 at his home at Iradelle, Texas, as a result of an injury from a sixty year calf. Mr. Holder was about a sixty year old man and left with his wife and children. Mr. Holder was born at Marion, Hancock county, and went to Texas thirty years ago. Concerning his death the Iradelle Sentinel says, in part:

"Mr. Holder was well and favorably known in this country, was a good citizen and a member of the Methodist church. He leaves a large family and a host of friends to mourn his departure. The funeral services were held in the First Baptist church at 3:30 yesterday afternoon and attended by one of the largest congregations we have seen at a funeral in many years."

An Anecdote of Pitt.

A certain Mrs. Beaumont of Bretton,
England, who lived in the time of Pitt and was wealthy and jolly, proud, one day thought to impress Pitt, who was staying at Bretton, with her riches.
She had a most splendid service of plate at dinner, and, waving her hand, she said, "There, Mr. Pitt; that's all from Bretton."

"Indeed," answered Pitt, "if you had not told me, Mrs. Beaumont, I should have thought it was silver."

Conditions of this Great Contest.

Every subscriber who remits $1.00, the regular subscription price for a year's subscription to THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS, will receive one certificate which will secure for him any prize which his estimate entitles him to claim.

When you send in your subscription, also send your estimates of the total paid admissions at the World's Fair during May, the first month of the Great St. Louis' Fair. Without doubt, the World's Fair will open at St. Louis on May 1, will be the largest fair ever held in the world, and every man, woman and child should be interested in this great enterprise.

The contest will close at midnight, April 30th, 1904, and no estimate received after that hour will be allowed. The official record of the Secretary of the World's Fair showing the total paid attendance during May, the first month of the Fair, will determine who are entitled to the prizes, and the awards will be made by a disinterested committee of prominent judges during the first week in June. As this contest will close on April 30, the day before the Fair opens, all will have an equal chance to win these prizes. Those who estimate or guess NOW will have a chance to win a Special Prize and just as good a chance to win the Capital Prize of $5,000.00 as the one who guesses on the last day of the contest.

The money to pay the prizes is deposited in the Central Savings Bank, Detroit, Michigan, and can be used for no other purpose. In case of a tie, or that two or more estimators are equally correct, prizes will be divided equally between them.

HERE IS THE LIST OF PRIZES.

In addition to the foregoing prizes the following "Ditch the public roads" is the advice of our Webster correspondent and it is good advice too. If all of our correspondents would take up the public roads and keep it up they would make it so wide for the Fiscal Court that they would soon be glad to "ditch" or do most anything else to improve them. The public road system of Breckenridge county is a menace to its prosperity and is especially a drawback to the farmer.

Everybody ought to wake up to the importance of good roads. And when everybody's awake something will be done.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Send us your name and address in the form of a label to be put on the wrapper of every bottle of your quantity.

CANCER CURED BY BLOOD BALM.

AH Skin and Disease Cured.

Mrs. M. L. Adams, Fredonia Ala., took Botanic Blood Balm which effectively cured an eating cancer of the nose and face. The sores healed up perfectly. Many doctors had given up her case as hopeless. Hundreds of cases of cancer, eating sores, suppurating swellings, etc., have been cured by Blood Balm. Among others, Mrs. B. M. Guernsey, Warrior Stand, Ala., whose nose and lips were raw and bony, with often severe pain, from the eating sores. Doctors advised cutting, but it failed. Blood Balm healed the sores, and Mrs. Guernsey is as well as ever. Botanic Blood Balm also cures eczema, itching humors, scabs and scales, bone pains, ulcers, offensive pimples, blood poison, carbuncles, scrofula, rising and bumps on the skin and all blood troubles. Druggists, $1 per large bottle. Sample of Botanic Blood Balm free and prepaid by writing Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga. Describe trouble and medical advice sent in sealed letter. It is certain worth while investigating such a remarkable remedy, as Blood Balm cures the most awful, worst and most deep-seated blood diseases.

How many feathers on a rooster?

California's Glorious Climate.

San Francisco, Cal., March 15.—J. D. Babbage, Editor Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

Dear Sir: I have been in California nearly a year and a half, and I can tell from my own experience something of the climate. Because California winters are ideal, the State has gained justly a reputation for cheerful comfort that draws thousands annually from regions of wind, ice and snow. Why sit beside steam pipes or hug coal stoves, when you can bask in the sunshine under an orange tree? Here is opportunity to escape from overpowering summer heat as surely as the severe cold of winter. Here is the paradise of the camper and the sportsman, for no rainstorm will come to upset outing calculations. Here is the most ideal of climates, joined with chances to meet Nature at first hand, in mountain canyons or big tree groves. There are Sierra lakes, so filled with trout that a cubic water ordinance ought to be enforced, and hundreds of mineral springs, shown by medical science to be not only equal, but superior, to the famed natural fountains of the old world. Surely California as a summer resort takes second place with no region on earth.

For prospective settlers, as well as tourists, there is pleasure in the thought of climatic comfort. It's an old story to California, but to men who have endured blizzards and have paid fuel bills big enough to endow a college, the subject has a fascinating interest. Libraries could be filled in telling pleasure-seekers of the attractive resorts of California. San Francisco, with its Cliff House, and its pictureque harbor and cool air, is not to be slighted as a seaside resort. In fact, there are many cities, harbors and bays that it would be useless to name which would afford great pleasure to see. Among the big cities of the state the tourists find instruction and pleasure.

And the mountains. From Shasta to San Jacinto, from Diablo to Whitney, they are ever new and ever alluring to the admirer of Nature's rugged handiwork. With Yosemite always first and the canyons of King and Kern rivers, there is wide choice for the man who loves the mountains.

Broadmoor, Cal.—Mr. J. D. Babbage, Dear Sir: Enclosed find $1.00 for subscription to the News. I need it even in the Golden State, where all is "milk and honey."

I am at the lower end of the Mohave desert, seven miles from Mexico. This is a new and thriving country. All the land is under irrigation, the water source being the Colorado river. It is tapped eight miles below Yuma, Ariz., and the main canal will carry as much as Sinking Creek in Kentucky, water from the Rockies to the sea. The canal goes down under this water company and land sells at $10 to $100 with water stock. We grow wheat, barley, oats, Kaffir corn and alfalfa, two crops a year. One hundred and sixty-five feet below the sea level is the lowest point.

Mr. Editor, if you don't like this dump it into the waste basket, but send me the News.

Yours truly,

Dr. Barnhill gave up a splendid practice at that place several months ago, and is a very good physician, but has also proven very successful as a salesman while on the road and his employers regret to give him up.

The Care of Children.

It is usually accepted without question that the modern scientific methods used in the care and treatment of infants are designed to increase the average duration of human life. Mr. Charlton T. Lewis, writing in Harper's Weekly, presents a different view. When infants were treated with less wisdom, he points out, the weaker persons died and the stronger survived. Now, the sick infant is treated with a large number recover from disease, it is inevitable that on the average those who are thus rescued must be weaker than the community to which they are restored. Thus, Lewis concludes, while saving life, "end especially to save lives which are feeble in a greater proportion than those which are strong and thus in the end must lower the vitality of the great mass of the population."

Kills Many Woodcocks.

Hawesville, Ky., March 23.—In Sullivan, a young man of Blackford bottoms, came to town Saturday with eight fine woodcock skins and killed all the day before. It was the largest bunch ever seen at one time in this county. Sullivan had been killing them for years as jacksnipe and was surprised when convinced of their true nature. The young fellow had no idea he was violating the game laws. He said that there were hundreds of the fine birds in the bottoms and that they came there every year. He said he had sold some in Owensboro at 25 cents each.

MR. JUSTICE FINNEMORE

Judge of the Natal Supreme Court, Sends the Following Remarkable Testimonial

TO CUTICURA

The World Is Cuticura's Field, Used Wherever Civilization Has Penetrated.

"I desire to give my voluntary testimony to the beneficial effects of your Cuticura Remedies. I have seen for some time from an excess of uric acid in the blood, and since the middle of last year, from a severe attack of Eczema, chiefly on the scalp, face, ears and neck and on one limb. I was for several months under professional treatments, but the remedies prescribed were of no avail, and I was gradually becoming worse. My face was gradually discolored and I lost all my hair. At last, my wife prevailed upon me to try the Cuticura Remedies and with the most wonderful results. The hair soon began to disappear and my hair commenced to grow again. A fresh growth of hair is covering my head, and my skin is now smooth and clear, and cured is rapidly improving. My wife thinks so highly of your remedies that she has been purchasing them in order to help others. I am now able to get rid of my former complaints, and, as President of the Bible Women's Society, I am helping Bible women to get rid of their skin diseases. I can assure you that your cures come under their notice when a poor person is so afflicted, so that your remedies may be used by many more.
